JLME Transgender Health Equity and the Law Symposium

October 17, 2022 | 9 AM - 5 PM

Spencer M. Partrich Auditorium | Wayne State University Law School | 471 W. Palmer Ave, Detroit, MI

This symposium will unveil a special issue of the Journal of Law, Medicine, and Ethics (JLME) devoted to Transgender Health Equity and the Law, with panels from authors and local researchers on a broad array of topics impacting transgender populations including:

- Policy as a Driver of Healthy Equity
- Access to Appropriate Health Care
- Reproductive Health
- International Human Rights

The symposium will pose opportunities for moving forward with a more equitable approach to policy impacting transgender populations.

Lunch is included. There is no charge to attend this event, however, seats are limited, and registration is required. Complimentary ASLME membership provided with attendance. Please join us at a reception following the event to network and continue the discussion.

RSVP by Sunday, October 9, at midnight, EST. To RSVP, or for more information visit the link https://bit.ly/3KVaMnb, or contact hwaltermccabe@wayne.edu
